

HAYWOOD ON STAND

Moyer is Firm Under Cross Examination

IGNORANT OF EVIL PLOTS

Although He Was Well Acquainted with Orchard and Had Considerable Business With Him Moyer Did Not Know of the Grudge.

Boise, Idaho, July 12.—When President Charles H. Moyer of the Western Federation took the stand at this morning's session of the trial of William D. Haywood for former Governor Steunenberg's murder it was evident from his expression and his bearing that he anticipated a relentless cross-examination. After mounting the witness stand he sat staring at the floor and chewed nervously on a wooden toothpick.

Before Senator Borah began his attack upon the testimony given by Moyer Wednesday, Clarence Darrow of counsel for the defense, read to the jury several excerpts from the constitution and ritual of the Western Federation of Miners. He read first the pledge that every new member of the Federation is required to take. The subscriber of this pledge is, among other things, obliged to swear "to uphold the principle of fraternity."

Next, the jury was acquainted with portions of the preamble of the Federation's constitution, a document which proclaims against the employment by the mine owners of armed forces or detectives. The constitution demands the repeal of the very statute relating to conspiracy and under which Haywood is now being tried.

Two hours of intelligent and searching cross-examination by Senator Borah made Moyer a good witness for the Haywood defense. Moyer's declarations were given without hesitation or equivocation, and he leaves a good impression upon the minds of those who heard the examination. Moyer very frankly admitted his fraternal relations with Orchard, Simpkins and Adams, the chief villains of Orchard's story. Moyer denied that Orchard's criminal acts were ever suggested or paid for by the Western Federation of Miners or its chief officers.

The cross-examination of Moyer was concluded at noon, and it was announced that William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of former Governor Steunenberg would take the stand immediately after recess.

SULTAN WILL MARCH TO SAVE McLEAN.

He Gathers Great Forces at Fez For the Rescue of the British Knight From Baisuli.

Tangiers, July 12.—It is declared here that the sultan of Morocco is deeply incensed at the recent capture by the bandit Raisuli of Lord Sir Barry McLean, the commandant of his body guard to whom he was greatly attached.

The sultan is preparing to march personally against Raisuli and in view of this proposed expedition extensive forces have been assembled at Fez.

Roads Must Tell Vermont Oil Rate Given Standard.

Rochester, N. Y., July 12.—Subpoenas have been served on Fred C. Targert, freight agent of the New York Central and Joseph D. Haines, freight agent of the Pennsylvania railroad in this city, to attend on Monday the investigation by a federal grand jury at Jamestown, N. Y., into the transportation of oil by the Standard Oil Company from Olean, N. Y., to points in Vermont.

They are required to bring with them books bearing upon the transfer of all tanks of petroleum and its products from the Pennsylvania to the New York Central. Most of these books and papers figured as evidence in the recent trial of the Central.

COUNTLESS DEFENDS IN JEWEL SCANDAL.

Hearing on Suit on Blue Diamond Theft Story Against Madam De Porzica.

Brest, France, July 12.—The hearing in the suit of Alexander Gregers, ex-secretary of the Russian embassy at Washington and Rio Janerio, against Countess Rodellac de Porzica for defamation of character in connection with the famous blue diamond affair has begun here.

M. Gregers, while visiting the Count and Countess Rodellac du Porzica at Kersters Castle, Brittany, in August, 1900, was accused by the countess of having stolen a valuable blue diamond from her.

Choate Has Committee Appointed to Harmonize Proposals.

The Hague, July 12.—A discussion of the Anglo-German proposition regarding the establishment of the proposed international prize court today occupied most of the time of the sub-committee to which the matter was referred.

Considerable opposition developed, and ultimately Joseph H. Choate moved the appointment of a small committee to harmonize the different proposals. M. Bourgeois (France) heartily seconded the motion which was carried unanimously.

"Confession and Autobiography of Harry Orchard"

In the July issue of McClure's Magazine a most important article is "The Confession and Autobiography of Harry Orchard," the confessed murderer of Governor Steunenberg of Colorado.

George Kibbe Turner contributing "Introductory Notes," briefly states the history of the situation and gives us his impression of Orchard's whom he has seen daily for weeks.

Beginning with his boyhood in Northumberland County, Ontario, Canada, in the late sixties, Orchard tells of his early life on the farm, with little schooling, much hard work regular church and Sunday-school attendance—the usual life of a farm boy. He tells how he worked out for near-by neighbors, and went home on Sunday until he was twenty-two when he went to work in a lumber wood in Saginaw, Michigan.

He saved a little, got married, and he and his wife, who was an expert cheese-maker, rented a cheese factory and started a business career.

The competition was close and this portion of the "confession" in which Orchard narrates his first deviation from a straightforward path are very important, as they picture forth his first trend toward the awful life he lived later. It is all simply told and the gradual steps are clearly marked:—short invoices to the people who bought his cheese, short weight to the men who bought milk from him, and all the details kept from his wife. He soon lived beyond his means, and finally lost his factory. Then follow the steps that finally led him to burn his second factory and run away with another man's wife. The woman returned home and Orchard drifted in Idaho, where he first encountered mining conditions and union affairs. How he drifted about driving a milk wagon, buying part interest in a mine from his savings, purchasing a wood yard in Burke, and kept drinking, and "sporting around" are narrated and he tells how he finally lost his business, went to work in a mine as a "hunker" and was transferred from the Knights of Labor to the Miners' Union, and for the first time became acquainted with the workings of the union as a member.

From here on he tells of the labor contests and graphically describes the blowing up of the Bonker Hill mine, and his escape from Burke to avoid arrest by the regulars.

FEW CHANGES IN STANDING

Relative Positions Same After Yesterday's Games

CHICAGO CUBS LOST THEIRS

Chicago White Sox Had a Picnic With Washington, and Cleveland Again Shut Out Boston—New York Nationals Defeat Cincinnati.

The results of yesterday's games in the big leagues did not make much difference in the standing of the teams. Both Chicago and Cleveland Americans won their games with Washington and Boston, respectively, and therefore remain relatively the same. Detroit, the third team didn't get a chance at the New York Highlanders because of rain, and the Athletics having defeated St. Louis in 12 innings, move a little closer to third position. New York retains the same figures, while St. Louis, Boston and Washington each takes a step downward.

The lead of the Chicago Nationals was cut down by the Philadelphia's, while New York helped to close the gap between second and first place by simply slaughtering Cincinnati. The other games were prevented by rain. The scores:

A friend from a western town writes:

"We can trace at least a thousand increase of population the past year from the fact that the fifty-four members of our Commercial Club about a year ago all agreed to have printed on the back of their business letterheads a description of the town, its location, climate, natural advantages, possibilities for business, etc. This every letter they wrote was an advertisement for the town. The town booming matter was artistically printed, and the catch line being visible as the folded sheet was taken from the envelope, few persons failed to read it. Inquiries for more information came pouring in, and then the people came pouring in. Why don't you try to have your people do likewise?"

Now that looks like a sensible proposition. Suppose fifty of our citizens should have their stationery printed with such matter on the back! Say they will average a thousand letters a year. That would be fifty thousand little booms for the town, going out to all quarters of the compass.

One of these letters might strike the eye of just the right party and bring us a new factory, an educational institution, or even a good substantial family looking for a desirable home place.

It is worth trying.

We can get up the descriptive matter for you and do the printing.

Why don't you start the ball?

GIRL BABY'S ANWFUL ECZEMA

Sight of Eye Destroyed by Disease—Tried Five Doctors but Grew Worse—In Agony Eight Months—Parents Discouraged, Until They Tried Cuticura Remedies

IN ONE WEEK ALL SORES DISAPPEARED

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor said it was. We called in the family doctor and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was scabies. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we phoned for doctor No. 4. He came over and looked her over and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 5. We thought we would try doctor No. 5. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10.00 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1. and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eyes. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 9, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906."

FEEDING THE BABY

Always Consult a Physician Before Changing the Diet.

When baby is ill and does not seem to thrive on mother's milk or when the little one is to be weaned, consult a physician before deciding what food to use.

Careful selection of a food for the baby is the cause of most of the illness that comes to the child.

Leading physicians prescribe Justfood, which is backed by years of reputation more frequently than any other baby food, as it is physically the same as mother's milk, containing bone and tooth-forming material that build up bone and muscle, while the undigestible fattening elements that form the chief part of condensed milk and many foods are purposely kept out.

Do not think that Justfood babies are not plump; for they gain in weight and strength much more rapidly than the average, but their weight comes from good solid flesh and strong bones.

THE SPEAKER'S MACE.

Origin of the Emblem of Authority Used in Congress.

At the right of the speaker's desk in the hall of the house of representatives in the capitol at Washington stands a large cylindrical pedestal made of highly polished green marble.

When the house is called to order each day, the sergeant at arms or one of his deputies places upon the pedestal the mace, which is the symbol of authority in the house. When the body adjourns he removes it and keeps it in safety until the house meets again.

This mace is of very ancient and honorable origin. Under the old Roman republic the magistrates passed on foot from one place to another administering justice, trying public offenders and imposing penalties.

Each of these magistrates was attended by a small body of men known as lictors, whose duty it was to make way for the officers of the law, preserve order, make arrests and inflict punishment on condemned citizens.

Each of these lictors carried with him a bunch of rods tied together with thongs and having an ax bound to the outside of it. The thongs were used for scourging and the ax for beheading. Sentences imposed by the magistrates were at once carried out.

Those bundles of rods were known as fasces. When the Romans conquered Britain the use of the fasces as a symbol was brought with them, and many other Roman customs remained with the British people.

While it was no longer used for inflicting punishment, it continued to be used as a symbol by the early English magistrates, and when an officer appeared carrying the fasces his authority was immediately accepted by all. It was, in effect, his badge of office.

The English form of the fasces was slightly changed in that the ax was placed inside of the bundle of rods, with the blade protruding from the top.

The great councils of the early Saxons gradually developed into one general body, which in the fourteenth century became known as the house of commons. In all these earlier councils the use of the fasces was continued, but it then came to be known as the emblem of legislative authority in that body down to the present day.

The house of representatives of the United States was modeled closely after the house of commons by the framers of our constitution, and the usage of the mace was borrowed from the English custom.

The first mace adopted by the house was destroyed by fire when the British burned the capitol in 1814. From 1814 until 1842 a mace of painted wood did service, but in the latter year the present mace was made after the model of the original one—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Your sons probably please you as well as you pleased your father.

If you don't look carefully after your own affairs, who do you imagine will?

A good many people try to administer forgiveness and punishment at the same time.

About all some men get for their efforts to be dignified is a reputation of having the swelled head.

The greatest triumph for a boy is the privilege of being accepted as an equal by boys somewhat older than himself.

Don't begin to wonder how other people can afford so many things that you can't afford. That is a big step in the direction of growing envious and sour.

We have noticed that people who do exactly as they please, whether their friends like it or not, get along about as well as those who are always trying to please—Athenian Globe.

IT SAVES YOU MONEY

The special half-price sale of Dr. Howard's specific for cure of constipation and dyspepsia by D. F. Davis, "the druggist," means the saving of a few dollars on every family's yearly bill for medicines.

Each 50-cent bottle (Dr. Davis sells it for 25c) contains sixty doses of a medicine that is pleasant to take and can be depended upon to cure the worst case of constipation, dyspepsia or liver trouble. Mr. Davis has so much faith in the superior merit of this medicine that he says: "If Dr. Howard's specific does not cure you come back to my store and I will return your money."

This remedy is not an ordinary medicine. It is the favorite formula of a well-known physician and has the endorsement of hundreds of physicians of eminence in their profession, who prescribe it in all cases of constipation, dyspepsia or liver trouble, knowing from experience that it will make a complete and lasting cure.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Dr. Francis E. Clark Re-elected President.

ROOSEVELT SENDS MESSAGE

Clark Tells of Aims and Objects of Society—General Secretary Shaw's Report Shows a Large Growth.

Seattle, Wash., July 12.—The International Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor convention opened here Wednesday evening in a tent. Reports were read by President Francis E. Clark, of the International Christian Endeavor, and General Secretary William Shaw. A message was also received from President Roosevelt. The convention will last five days. Dr.

REV. FRANCIS E. CLARK.

Clark was unanimously re-elected president; Hiram F. Lathrop of Boston treasurer; George B. Graft of Boston, clerk of the corporation, and Fred H. Kider of Boston auditor, a position newly created by the board.

The report of general secretary Shaw dealt with the work of the society for the past two years. Mr. Von Ogden Vogt, reported at the Baltimore convention 63,772 societies in all the world. The present net enrollment is 69,138 societies, a net gain of 2,366 societies. Of these 47,761 are young people's, 2,265 are intermediate, 18,947 are juniors and the rest are floating societies and other classes, with a total membership of 3,156,000.

The gifts for missions and other benevolences, largely local church work, aggregates $4,378,920 for the two years since the last report or an average of $2,189,460 for each year.

Euphemisms For Death.

"Decease" is now a regular form of word for death. But it began as a gentle euphemism, "decease" (departure) seeming much less harsh to the Romans than "mors." All languages abound in euphemisms of the kind, which go back to a superstitious reluctance to mention death plainly that gradually passed into a kindly desire to soften the idea. "Passed away," "departed," "gone," "expired" (breathed out), "no more," "demise" and even "the late" are expressions of this nature. Most striking of all is the Roman euphemism for "he is dead," "vixit" (he has lived).

SOME OF THE TESTIMONY

Below we present some of the testimony that was taken during the investigation into the curability of Bright's Disease and Diabetes that caused the announcement from San Francisco that these diseases are now curable.

Testimony of Mr. Edward Short, of the San Francisco Custom and Excise Service, San Francisco:

"Mr. Short you are cited as one of those who have been cured of Bright's Disease or Diabetes—diseases alleged to be incurable according to medical authorities.

A. That is correct. It was Diabetes. Q. How long were you under treatment?

A. It was nearly a year before I was right well.

Q. Did you have a physician make a test to determine whether or not there was complete elimination of the sugar?

A. Yes, I had two. I had both of the physicians who made the original diagnosis make the tests, and they both reported normal.

Q. Were they surprised?

A. Intensely so. One of them told me I could pass for insurance.

Q. Will you tell about it?

A. It was about five years ago my heart began to trouble me. My normal weight of two hundred pounds was so reduced my friends hardly knew me. I slept but little, and was steadily declining. About that time I made application for membership in a fraternal society, the medical examiner rejecting me. I then consulted a physician, who promptly diagnosed my case as Diabetes. He was frank and told me I could not live long and to put my affairs in shape. His report was so serious that I went to another physician. He confirmed the diagnosis. I spent a summer at Bartlett Springs, hoping the change would help me. I had by this time fallen to 135 pounds, and was so weak I could walk but a few feet at a time, and had no faith that anything could be done. Some one in my neighborhood noticed my serious condition, and upon learning what my trouble was, told me that Diabetes was curable, and where to get the Fulton Compound that was curing it. My recovery was then gradual.

Q. Do you know of any other recoveries?

A. Yes. A neighbor, a Mrs. Lawrence, living on Duane street, was reported to be suffering from Bright's Disease. My daughter told her about it, and she was soon improving under it.

I also sent word to my friend, William Martin, an S. P. conductor, running between this city and Stockton, about it, upon learning that he was so badly off with Diabetes that he was contemplating giving up his position on the road. He came down and procured it and got the same results I did. He began to gain, and when I saw him last was as big and stout as ever, telling me that his physician reported that there was finally no sugar. Had he not been killed he would be alive today, at least so far as Diabetes is concerned.

I also told Col. Hawkins about it. He had Diabetes, and he took it and it cured him. He is in the government service and you will find him by inquiring at the Custom House.

I also told Captain Hubbard of the Barkentine S. N. Castle about it. He had Diabetes. I got on the case with him myself and saw him when he came to show him where to get the Compound. It acted in his case just as it did in mine. When he went away on that voyage he was in mighty bad shape. On his return he was looking and feeling his old self and admitted to me that it was wonderful. He showed his interest by taking a lot of Compound down to the islands.

Another interesting case
